Forecast for Saturday 27 Nov 2021

Weather: A very cold start with glen temperatures around freezing and strong to gale force northerly winds, these touching storm force at first. Snow and hail showers will continue to spread south across all ranges, but mainly focussed across the Cairngorms and Monadhliath mountains. Some good sunny spells between these showers which will become increasingly isolated later in the day. Clearer spells through evening.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 60%.

Visibility: Snow showers will bring fast changing conditions with visibility dropping to near zero and blizzard conditions within them, but outside the air will have good clarity. Low cloud will be largely confined to in and around showers, but will fall to 300m or so at times.

Met Office Aberdeen Meteorologist's View
Risk of storm force winds confined to early morning. Spells of sunshine will lead to glare off recent fresh snow. Mean wind speeds at 300m and below look too low by 10mph.

Forecast for Sunday 28 Nov 2021
Weather: Another very cold start with cloud cover varying from very little in the south to likely overcast with patchy snowfall in the north. This thicker cloud may sink south through the day to affect the southern ranges, bringing poor visibility and further spells of mainly light snow. Skies tending to clear through the evening. Much lighter winds than previous days.

Maximum wind: West 10-20mph.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 30% north, 60% south.

Visibility: Cloud likely to shroud slopes above around 400m in the north initially but this will spread to all ranges by late morning. Snowfall, although mainly light will lead to visibility of only a few hundred meters.

Temperature: Glens: Around freezing in the north, minus 3 or 4 Celsius in the south. Rising to plus 2 or 3 Celsius by day.
At 800m: Minus 5 Celsius.
Freezing level: 100-200m.
